National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment
Yet another active frontal system is expected to affect parts of England and Wales during Christmas Eve, more especially southern areas. An additional 10-20mm is probable quite widely with 30mm or more in some areas. Following heavy rainfall during previous days and given already saturated ground this rain is likely to lead to significant surface water issues. This alert should be viewed in context with the amber alert over southwestern England where disruption is considered more likely.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012 until 23:59 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012

A further spell of wet weather is expected to affect parts of England and Wales on Christmas Eve, southern areas in particular. Given already saturated ground from recent rainfall, the public should be aware of the risk of further localised flooding and disruption to travel.
